STRENUOUS LIFE

Mrs. Smith — You are cute, intelligent, and lively. I heard of a book — The Fountainhead; I would like to talk to you about it; it can be related to fraternities.

You are opinionated; it seems to stand out in your especially because you support your opinions so well. Your eyes is wonderful Wonderful class glad I stayed. Best of luck a great deal of hope. Have a great year. Superb year.

John

Mrs. Smith

To one of my most favorite English Teechers,

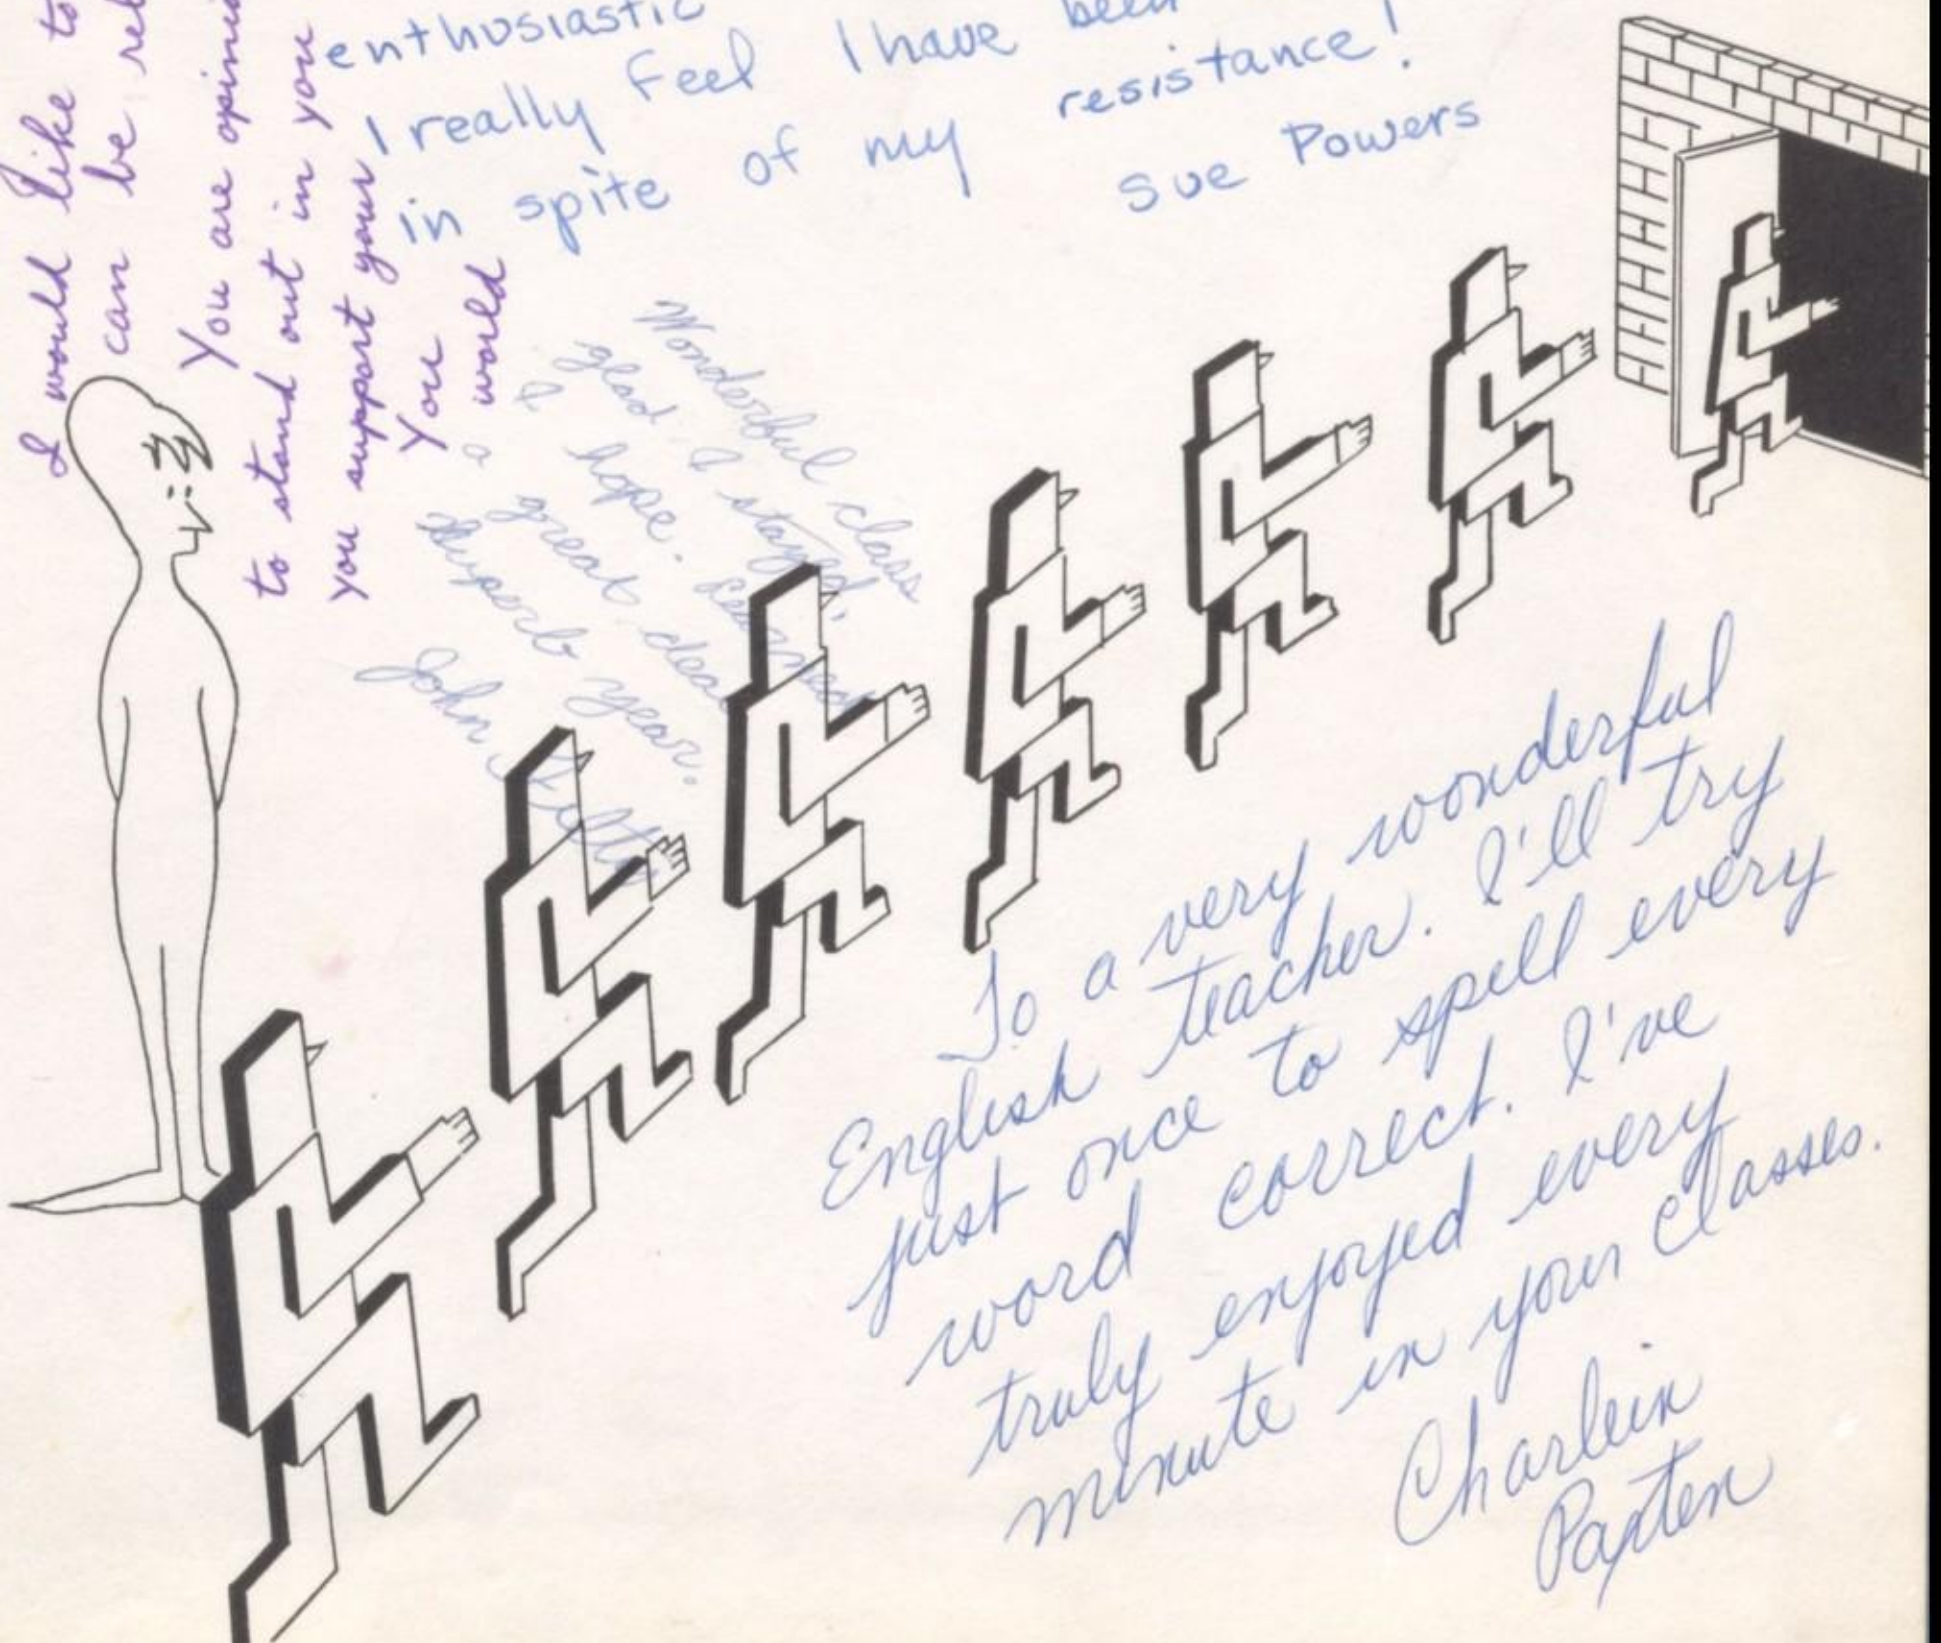
I'll never be a speler but I sure can thank mrs Smith for bein' pacient in that painful process of opening a little cat's eyes.

Forever grateful

Dan Feltham

It was very refreshing to have such an enthusiastic teacher in my senior year. I really feel I have been culture-ized in spite of my resistance!

Sue Powers



To a very wonderful English teacher. I'll try just once to spell every word correct. I've truly enjoyed every minute in your classes.

Charlein Payten

Hi Mrs. Smith!
I didn't expect
ere. to have an rmal like I can't Think why. I'll have to watch and not make spelling & grammar errors.
I want to tell you that you last han to me. To me it was rest in my term paper and
All see you next year when I visit and thank you so much.

Dear Mrs Smith,
I have never become acquainted with so many books, magazines, and pamphlets in my writing and reading career. I truly appreciate the complete corrections that you made on all of my papers. I wish I had time to do things more thoroughly. Thank you for your help and direction. This semesters work has been invaluable.

Sincerely,
Carolyn Davis

Dear Mrs. Smith
I have gained more from LA 12 a than any other course in high school.

Roosevelt High School

Dear Mrs Smith,
I have truly enjoyed this year at Roosevelt. I received the lowest grades this year in high school, but oddly enough, I have ~~see~~ learned more and feel better prepared for college than ever before. It's been fun having you as a teacher. Mike Caraway

To Mrs. Smith
I have certainly enjoyed being in your class this semester. As with everything all good things must come to an end. Teaching method your personality and the most impressive to me. I hope to see you again sometime. Please, Mrs. Smith, don't do any correcting this summer. Best of luck with your Teaching next year.
Mike Kerns

Individualism emerges from a world of conformity

"Follow the crowd! Join this! Do that! Conform!" These words echoed from the halls of Roosevelt High School midst crowds of students. Crowds filled to capacity the football stadiums, basketball gyms, and baseball bleachers at game time. The school auditorium was a crowded site during assemblies, musical presentations, and dramatic productions. In study halls and classrooms, students occupied every available seat.

Masses even jammed the hallways—but what is a crowd? Each crowd is "the aggregate of the individuals composing it," and the worth of a state, an organization, or a school is the worth of the individuals composing it.

Guiding activities which stimulated individualism were student leaders, who focused their goals "On Target." Students developed individualism by seeking knowledge, participating in committees or athletics, and by achieving self-expression through scholarship and leadership. Theodore Roosevelt, who was himself a strong individualist, stated, "Elimination of individualism . . . spells ruin to the nation and to the individual himself."

MRS. "E.M."
Have rather enjoyed my experiences under your wing", so for the rest of my days, will never forget your methods of teaching, your ability of becoming fast friends with all the students and most of all, the help you have rendered my sometimes unwilling frame. Taking all into consideration, thank you
Mrs. Smith
love,

PS — Hope to see you in civilian life sometime

Mrs. Smith
This semester has been everything I expected and more. I am so very grateful to have been one of your students. I feel as if I have left a very distinct impression upon my learning experience. I wish you the very best in the future. I hope I can come back sometime & see you in action. I have problems? I know I will do very well. Sincerely

Faculty and curriculum build individual knowledge

Dear Mrs. Smith—
This semester has been one of my most rewarding in school. I must admit, I have never worked so hard in my life and at times I thought I would never survive, but I have learned so much that it is worth every late, hour of it. I will never forget you. Your ability to make each of us feel important helped me a great deal. I think it made me work harder. - Knowing that you cared. I recommend you to all of my Junior friends. I really can't express how much it has meant to me to be in your class. Best of luck to you. I'll be back sometime next year to visit and to see all of the intelligent?? looks on your students' faces.

Sincerely,
Sandrea Bone

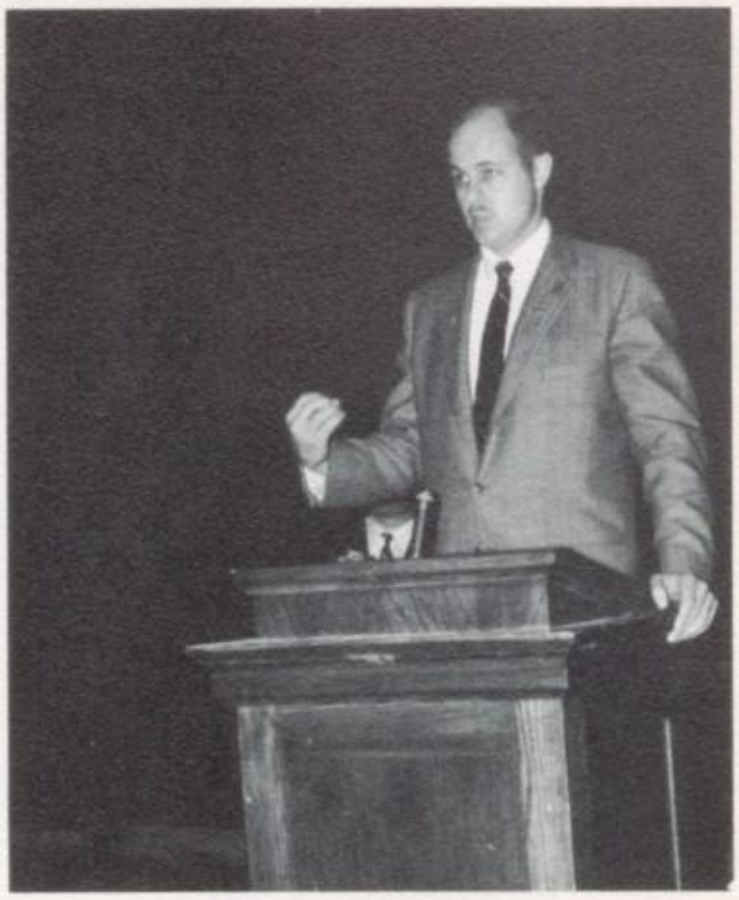
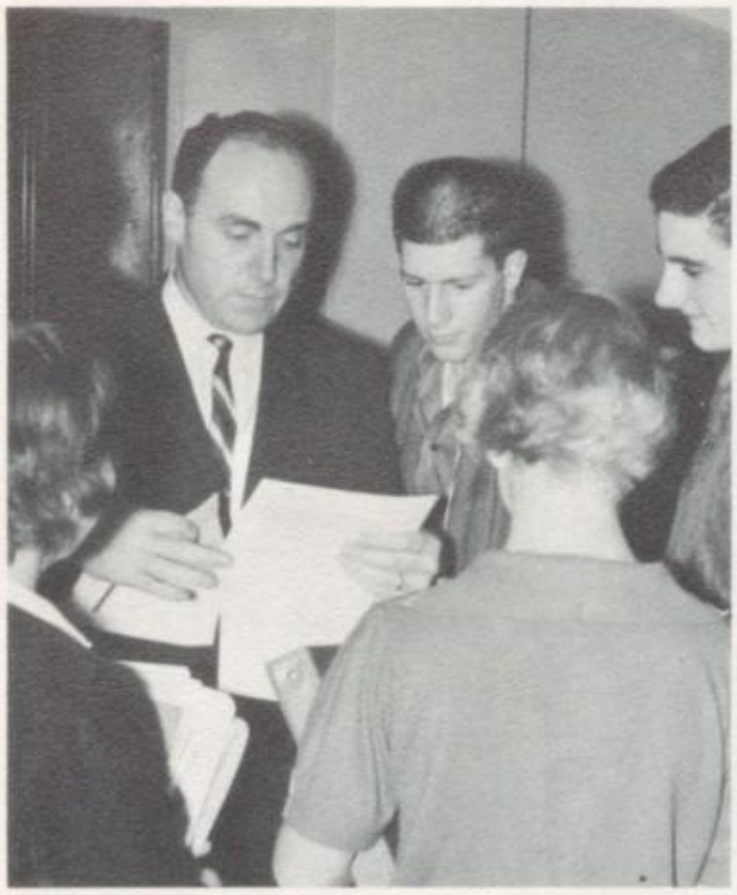
Senator Kennedy was unable to break a tight schedule and appear at the "Great Issues" series, but Roosevelt fans followed his campaign on television.

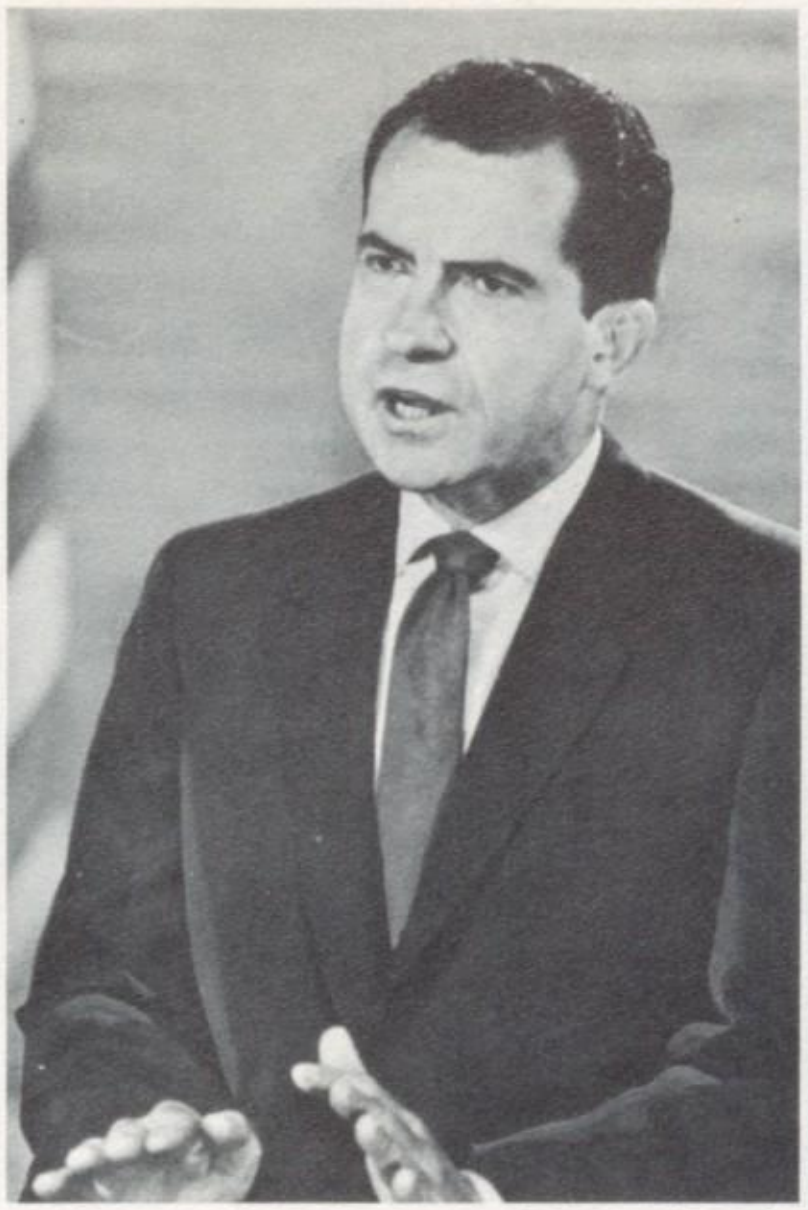


State Senator Andy Hess describes the role of the Democratic Party in modern politics.

Television cameras roll as Mayor Gordon S. Clinton explains the city-wide controversy over pinball machines to history and government students.



Roosevelt students cluster about Republican State Committee Chairman, William Goodlow, after his appearance in the "Great Issues" program.



Vice-President Nixon answers Kennedy's queries on the television "debate."

Dr. Giovanni Costigan speaks on the "Meaning of Democracy."

Visiting VIPs vie for capacity crowds

Teenage marriage to apartheid, Communism to Century Twenty-one: Roosevelt's "Great Issues" series has projected a colorful spectrum for the after-school scholars interested in current affairs.

Mike Gross contacted speakers from state Democratic and Republican headquarters for an informal debate resembling the Nixon-Kennedy encounters. Doctor Giovanni Costigan of the University of Washington History Department and Captain Sanger from the Sand Point Naval Air Station both spoke on aspects of democracy: Dr. Costigan on its meaning; Captain Sanger on its threat by Communism. "Great Issues" originated at Roosevelt in 1959. This year Vice-President Jerry Erickson organized the series.

John Hopkins, Christine Henning, and Hugh Haworth see the light of knowledge shine in Mr. David Scott's Physics class.

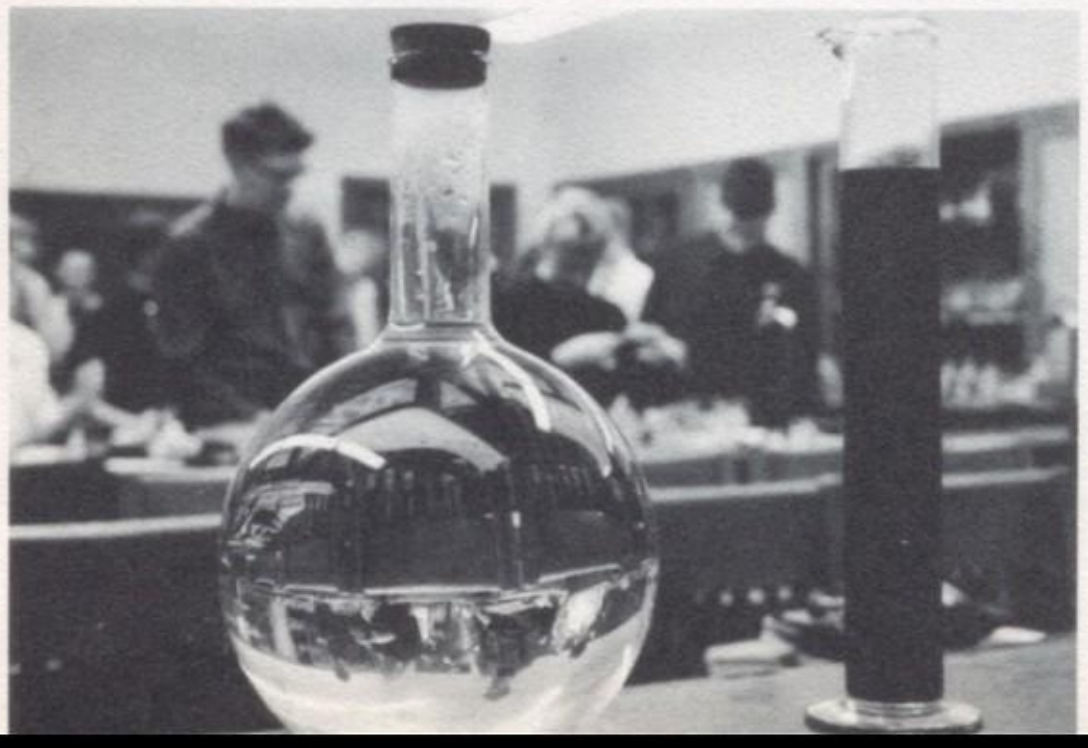
David Given and Janet Sammons plot the graph of the equation "$y=x^3-4x$."

Wide curriculum provides variety

To provide stronger curriculum, the Seattle School Board approved plans for installing foreign language equipment at Roosevelt. The lab should be finished by the fall of 1961 and will occupy the space now used by Rooms 109 and 110. This lab, consisting of thirty complete listen-response-record units, will give the individual intensive practice in speaking. As the student will be able to record his own voice next to that of his instructor, he will be able to hear and correct any differences in pronunciation or intonation.

In the math department, last year's two SMSG Geometry classes expanded to five. A course embracing the fundamentals of college algebra ("Advanced Math") increased from one class to two. Roosevelt won national recognition "for outstanding proficiency in the Annual Mathematical Contest" sponsored by the Mathematical Association and Society of Actuaries.

Mr. Ora Krienke formulated a magic potion to solve the problem of unruly Chemistry III classes. Now he just bottles them up in big flasks. . . .



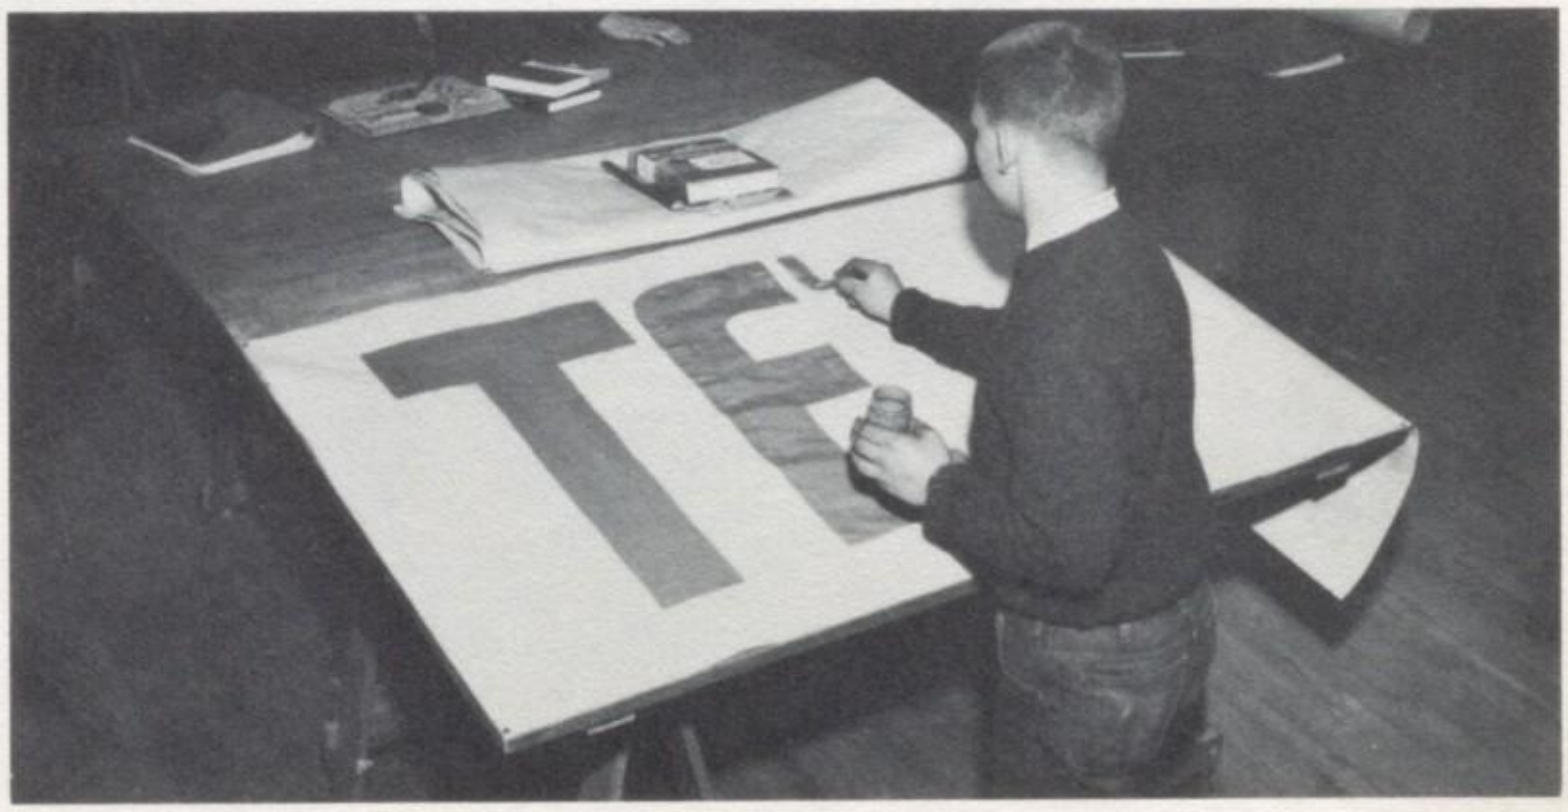
"Who swiped the edifice, Oedipus?" George Ordal, Anne Reifler, Cindy Marriott, and Brandt Morgan relive the glory that Rome stole from Greece.

One hundred years after the beginning of the Civil War, Miss Elizabeth Clark conjures visions of the great conflict.

Bob Carson, Gary Fauro, Susan Mollan, Bill Grondal, and Maureen O'Reilly listen to Pete Burgner demonstrate some of the skills acquired in Mr. Ivard Strauss's Speech Arts class.

Bill James, Denny McDonald, and Dave Prince demonstrate some of the skills learned in Mr. Lou Hull's 7:40 tumbling class.

Mr. Oscar Rosenquist watches as Heidi Goss, Dick Humphreys, Sharon Helle, and Carole Winston use some of the knowledge acquired in botany class.



George Olsby executes a large poster in Mr. Donald Harney's mechanical lettering class.

Susan Powers, Charlein Paxten, Dave Street, and Chris Shaffer participate in one of Mrs. Ellen Smith's new pilot language arts classes.

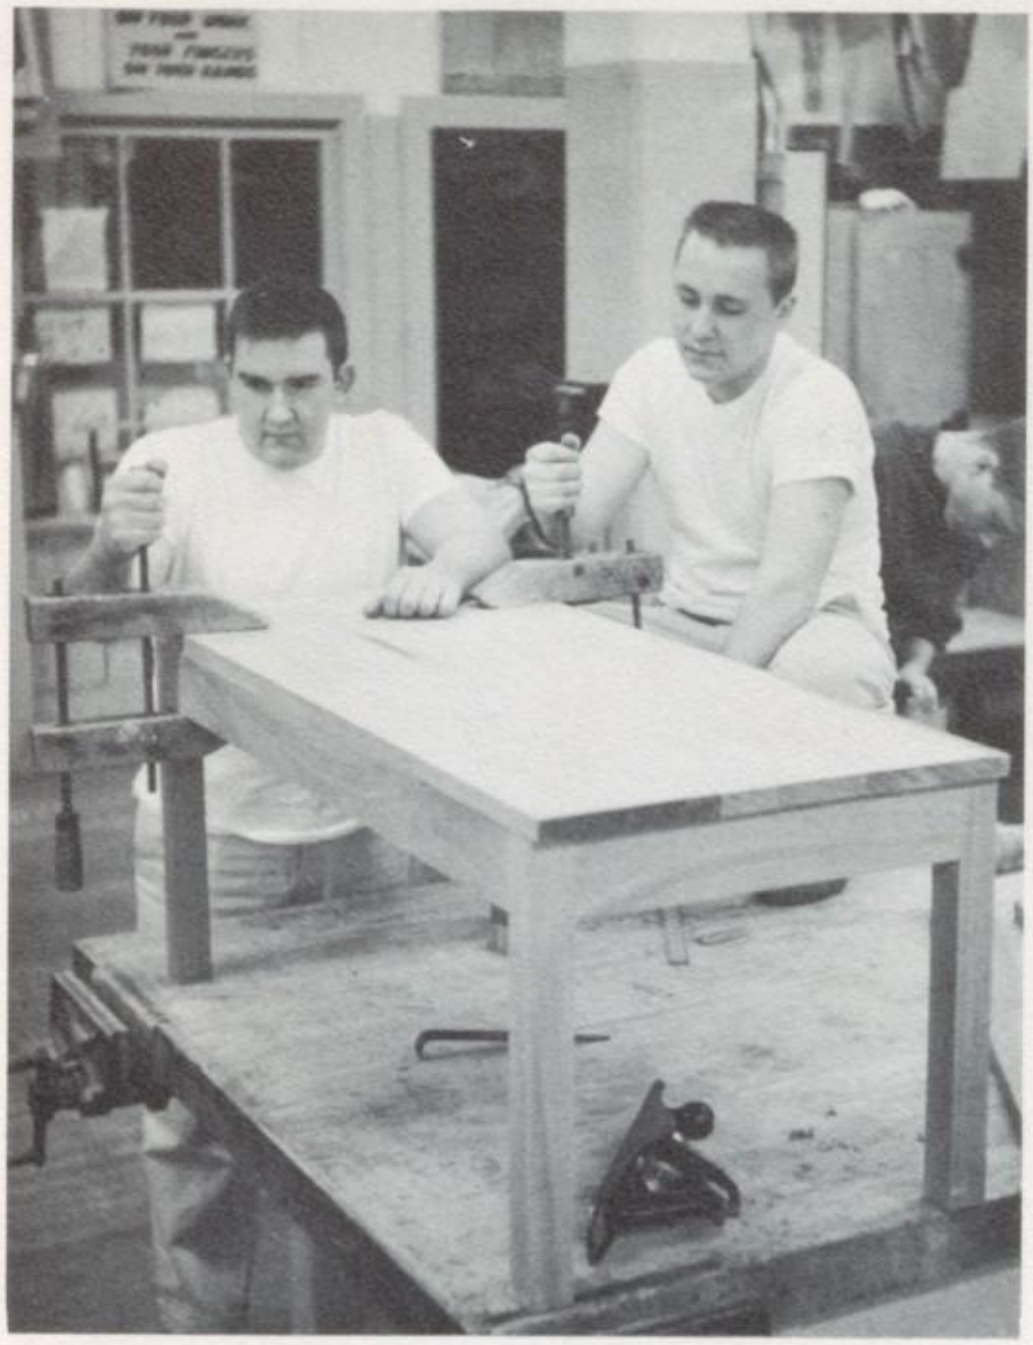
Teds meet challenge of book subjects

Academic subjects compose seventy-five per cent of the average student's curriculum. One innovation this year was the Senior pilot language arts program conducted on a city-wide basis. Mrs. Ellen Smith and Mrs. Carlotta Brunson taught eight pilot classes of twenty students each as a movement to improve English teaching by the use of smaller groups. A second experiment was the two-semester length Senior Honors in Language Arts.

Although not new, botany and biology classes proved to be popular, with an enrollment of 737. These classes, aided by the greenhouse, microscope, and long-suffering worm, probed the mysteries of the plant and animal kingdoms.

Muttering, "We'll find that worm if we have to dig up the whole field," Diane Stewart and Brian Straker prove that nothing hinders the cause of science.

Elizabeth Mills and Arnie Jaffe dissect a lower vertebrate, while Janet Sethre and Bob Alexander fend off a vicious crawfish in Mr. John Fullner's first-period biology class.



Boys become expert craftsmen while producing useful articles in Mr. Erling Thorsen's wood shop. Gluing a table are Jack Stearns and John Peppmiller.

Roosevelt expands industrial arts

"I think it is deplorable the lack of nonacademic subjects to be found in the nation's secondary schools," said Samuel Eliot Morrison, naval and American historian, recently in Esquire. Roosevelt, however, offers over a dozen courses in the nonacademic arts. The industrial arts department has added a gasoline-engine shop where boys are able to work with automobile engines. Roosevelt students also make useful tools and contemporary furniture in the metal and wood shops. Mr. William Gould's jewelry and ceramics classes construct projects ranging from silver jewelry to colorful vases.

Well I'll be . . . Sometimes this nonconformity is carried just too far!

Teddy Roosevelt is a favorite subject for sculpture in Mr. William Gould's Design Lab Class. Working on the bust are Carolyn Norris, Rod Kirchan, Roberta Pody, and Bill Hults.

Metal represents the growing nation. Showing their skill in Mr. James King's shop are Bob Woodward, Jim Morrissey, and Dick Williams.

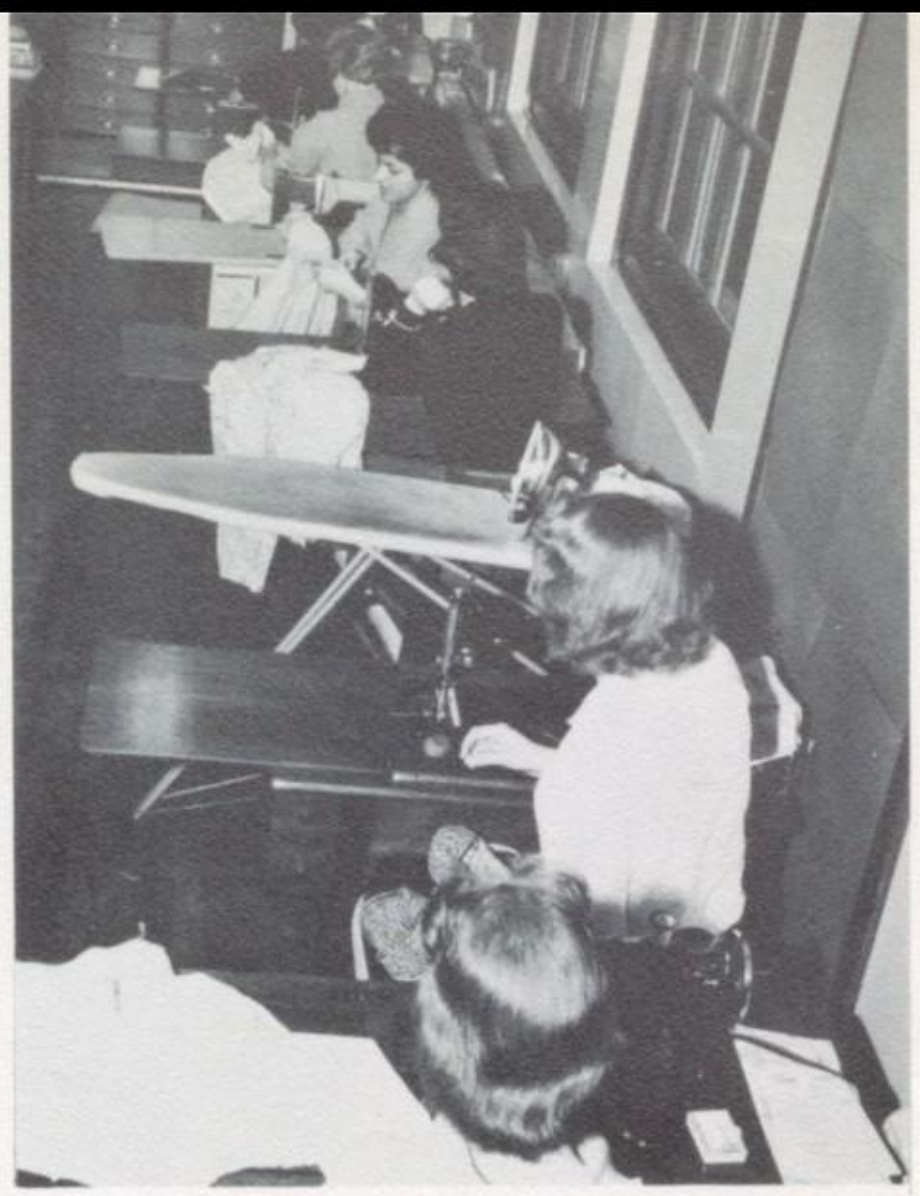
. . . Monkey business by Cathey Hunt and Nancy Cooper.

Tomorrow's home is the task of today

Featuring a different department of the school in the Strenuous Life each year is traditional. This year's inside-view is of the Home Economics department under the chairmanship of Mrs. Kathryn Barber. Other Home Economics teachers include Mrs. Celia Michel and Mrs. Lorna Erickson.

Boys constituted one-third of the students electing Foods I and II and Senior Foods. These classes served lunch to the guests of Roosevelt and provided refreshments for the leaders of other schools visiting the ASR.

Modeling fashions at the Girls' Club Holly Berry Tea, held December 20, was one of the responsibilities of the clothing classes. On January 6, the yell leaders first wore their new vests made by the Tailoring I and II classes at the basketball "Tip-off" assembly. Field trips, panels, and guest speakers supplemented the Home Living and Home Management courses.



Students finish their projects in Mrs. Lorna Erickson's Clothing II class. Top to bottom: Margie Cole, Karen Symington, Lillian Hall, Pat Anderson, Vicky Bennett, Judy Reeves.

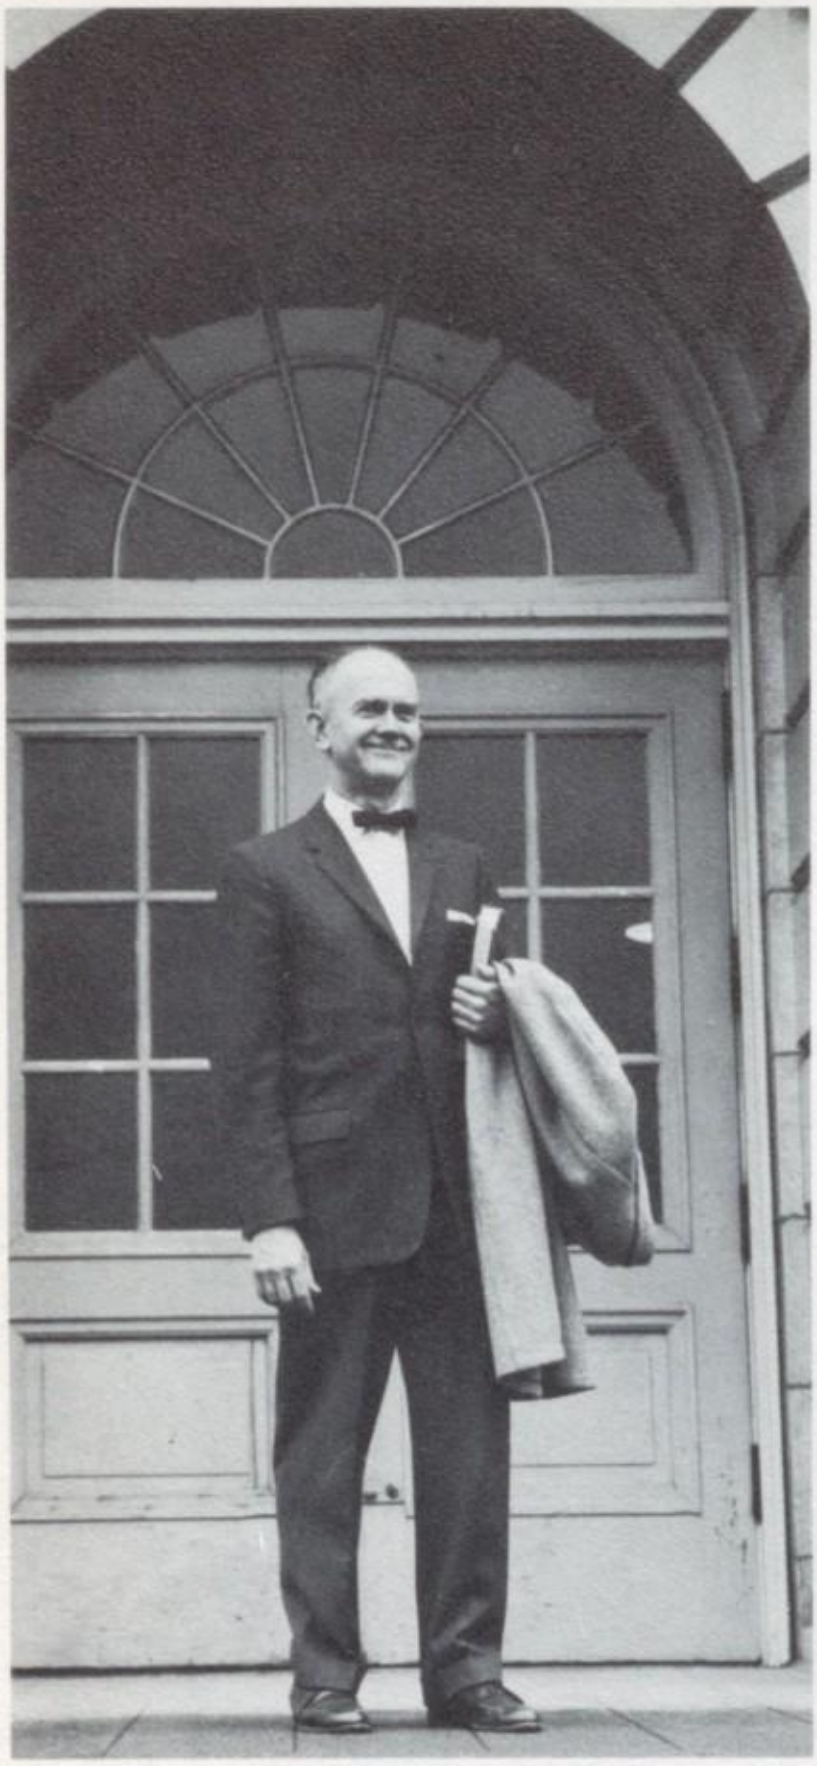
Cooking on demonstration stoves furnished Roosevelt by different manufacturers are Janet Davidson, Ron Gerde, Amy Nelson, and Peggy Woods.

Dear Mrs Smith,
I really enjoyed being in your 4TH period class. No kidding you are one of the few inspirational teachers I've had. I felt sometimes a student wanted to do for the work of you instead of having to do it. I hope other students appreciate you as much as I do.
Sincerely,
Dorothy Hashager

Interested students of Mrs. Kathryn Barber's Home Management class listen to a retailer discuss appliances while on a field trip.

At the Holly Berry Tea, Lillian Hall models a dress she made in Clothing class.

A panel of mothers discusses questions posed by students in a Home Living class under the direction of Mrs. Lorna Erickson.

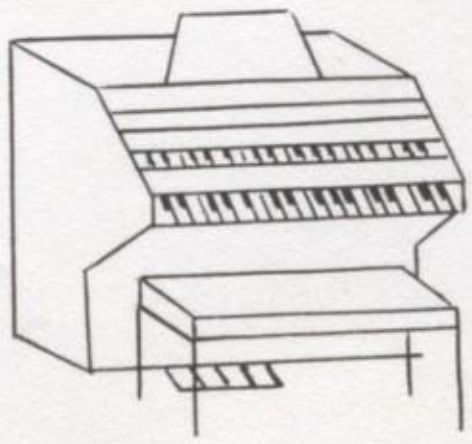


Cecil F. Bullock

Born in Tacoma, Washington, Mr. Cecil Bullock moved to Seattle when he was five. At Ballard High School, he held a Sophomore class office, participated in drama and choir, and accompanied the Boys' Glee Club. He majored in English and history at the University of Washington. He was also a member of the YMCA cabinet, president of Wesley Club, and president of Phi Delta Kappa, a men's educational honorary. He cadeted at Lincoln High School.

Mr. Bullock's first job after graduation was in Pendleton, Oregon. He taught history, coached the debate team, and directed the Boys' Glee Club. Two years later he came to Roosevelt to teach history and economics. At one time he was business manager for the Strenuous Life. From 1937 to 1951 Mr. Bullock was Roosevelt's Vice-Principal. In 1951 he became Principal of West Seattle High School, and then in 1957 returned to Roosevelt in his present capacity.

Mexico, twelve European countries, and Hawaii are among the areas Mr. Bullock has visited. He has two daughters, both Roosevelt graduates. In his free time he enjoys reading, fishing, and playing the organ.



To Mrs. Smith.

"61 is nearly done, the end is almost here,
But before we leave these hallowed halls, I'd like to make things clear.
The Final Whistle Blew itself out, but its purpose was never defeated,
The "dead minds" ruling "in the higher places" felt it should be deleted.
We had a ball throughout the year showing All our form.

"The greatest things are accomplished
Fighting the tyranny of tradition, trying to non-conform.
Campus Day was quite a blast, we all became unruly,
We learned another important thing, Bell was Bullock's stooge,
by individual men."
—Spurgeon
Watson screamed to the main office, when she and her books were parted.
And though our prank was "nipped in the bud" a new one was soon started.
At 10:15 on Friday morning our lockers were filled with clocks, all clocks,
But Bullock and assistants foiled our plans, with a key that opened so to the Activity Center we all went, our faces rather livid.
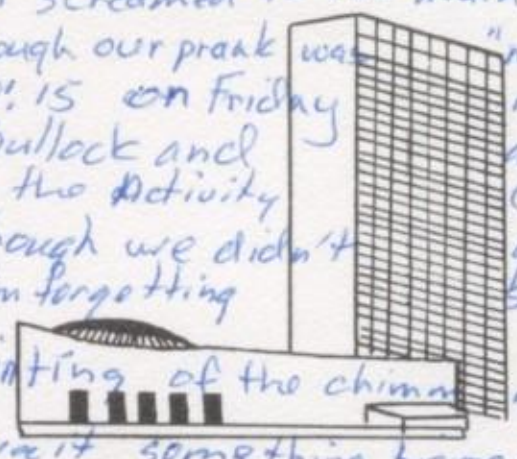
And though we didn't get away with much, our memories are vivid.
But I'm forgetting something important, and it over-shadows all.



The painting of the chimney and portable roofs, and the marks on our front hall.
But wait something bigger has happened, although I hate to brag.
"61" is the only year, that someone has stolen the flag.
And now that my mind begins to fail and my wit begins to stall.
I'd like to bring up our closing night, the biggest of them all.
The Senior Prom will mark the end, of all our schooling fun.
But they will remember for many years the Class of "61",
For we were the biggest and we were the wildest, and we were the best of all.
And though we won't admit it quite yet, we've really had a ball.
And so I'll close with these immortal words,
lest you become ashamed,
For we were never really understood,
only praised or blamed.
Thanks for your understanding
Jim Kibble

Carl O. Lawrence

Because his father was prospecting for gold, Mr. Carl Lawrence lived in the area of Fairbanks, Alaska, until he was five. Then he moved to Seattle where he attended Broadway High School. In his Senior year at the University of Washington, Mr. Lawrence was president of the student unit of the Washington Education Association. After finishing graduate work in history, he came to Roosevelt. From 1949 to 1959 he was head of the Social Studies department; in 1959 he became Roosevelt's Vice-Principal.

A Ford Foundation Fellowship entitled Mr. Lawrence to spend the year 1952-1953 with his family in New York City, studying the United Nations at New York University and Columbia, and observing many actual sessions.

Mr. Lawrence's summer jobs have included work as a mailman and as a taxicab driver. Hiking and playing golf are among his interests. He has two sons, aged ten and twelve.

Roosevelt's one-hundred member faculty includes seven new teachers and one exchange teacher, Senor José Lopez, from Chiclayo, Peru, who taught Spanish at Roosevelt the first semester. New teachers are Mrs. Helen Winter, Mr. Percy Wang, Mr. John Bailey, Mrs. Lucile O'Connor, Miss Wilma Reinecke, and Mr. Albert Walker. Mr. Paul Eggleston entered in November as a substitute for Dr. Edward Liston, who was seriously ill for several months.

Miss Aristelle Macdonald returned after spending a year as an exchange teacher in England. At the Teachers' Training College in Hereford, she taught drama and produced several plays, among them "I Remember Mama" and "The Corn Is Green." Mr. Melvin Tuscher spent the previous year studying at the University of Minnesota on a National Science Foundation Scholarship.

In the past year some of the teachers have had unusual experiences. Miss Elizabeth Clark received the Valley Forge Foundation Award, one of the highest honors a history teacher can earn. Mr. Byron Baggaley was re-elected mayor of Kirkland. Mr. Earl Prebezac has been the master of ceremonies for World Cavalcade, the largest travel film-lecture sponsor in the United States. Last summer Mr. Ivan Jones taught swimming at the View Ridge pool. Miss Helen Anderson visited the Congo, Egypt, Iran, Turkey and Greece; Miss Doris Sundling traveled to Waikiki on the first Pan-American non-stop jet flight to Hawaii; and Miss Elizabeth Montgomery vacationed in central Europe.

Mrs. Smith,

Oops, sorry. Mrs E.M. Smith. I have really enjoyed your classes and help these past three years. I have you to thank for my ability to express myself. I hope that your love for teaching never dims. I'll admit I thought some of those assignments were hair-brained. When you were gone those two weeks all the challenge and enjoyment went out of the class. Lots of luck in your future teaching. I'll see you again next year when I come visit the best old alma mater.

-Margaret Jorgensen

Activities stimulate the individual

Dear Mrs. Smith, You are a constant inspiration to me, and a haven of delightful ideas. Are you one to Mary at Roosevelt and also enjoy sheep and sailing. (I could make a banner reminder for you next year, and that you will make it.) Thanks for being what you are. Good wishes, Mary Webber

Mrs. Smith,

It was great & very interesting being in your L.A. class first semester. I'll never forget some of our assignments in your class - objective topics written subjectively & vice-a-versa! our magazine panels, book-reviews & of course my special topic with Mike Gross. I really don't see how he can work so hard all of the time - if he's the same way in all of his classes but it was fun. The Milbanks are our advisors now in LRY & I borrowed a book telling about HAIKU which I'm trying to get through. I've read gobs of books since I got out of school: Edna Ferber, East of Eden, and just lots of plays, too. I don't know where I'm going but I'm going up to Western next year & I think that I should select even tho' I'll just be taking the lit. arts & not selecting a major my 1st yr. Well - I must go; I'll drop in & see you again some time.

A Well-Intentioned (Procrastinating) English Student,

"On Target" goal unites activities

Amid cheers of "On Target!" the school year of 1960-61 commenced with an orientation assembly featuring cavemen, Romans, Indians, and the student body officers. The ASR officers encouraged Boys' Club, Student Council, and Student Cabinet by offering them new ideas.

Student Council initiated the use of committees to investigate new propositions submitted to it, such as the recommendations for a revised grading system and test schedule. Advisory Council, besides handling smoking and study hall problems, emphasized its power to interpret the constitution. Wishing to promote good student-teacher relations, a panel of ASR officers and Cabinet members explained student government problems at a faculty meeting. Twenty-nine committee chairmen united extra-curricular activities aiming for a "bull's-eye."

Students gain experience in financial matters

One phase of extra-curricular activities is teaching the student to deal with financial matters as an individual. The five students on Pass Sales Committee worked as directors of different projects in promoting the sale of passes. This year ninety-eight per cent of the student body purchased passes.

Thrift Committee promoted banking through posters and bulletin notices. The members collected the banking envelopes each Tuesday. Finance Committee with nine members, four faculty members and five students, made the budget for the coming year.

Bulletin Board Committee was in charge of the five boards on the first floor. They publicized school events and helped with such projects as Great Issues and Color Week. Ticket Force was in charge of the sale and collection of all tickets for school functions. Each member spent his lunch time in the ticket office.

Finance Committee: Robin Bracken, Anne Norris, Gary Robbins, Mr. Hall, Mr. Bullock, Mr. Bell. Bob McMahon, Susan Lewis, Mr. Olmsted.

Students give service beyond call of duty

Selected for their character and scholarship, the study hall checkers donated a large portion of their time checking and recording attendance records. The study hall supervisors saw that students were in their seats, and that no talking, eating, or gum chewing occurred. A head supervisor acted as room chairman for each study hall.

By keeping a file of the activities carried by a student, the Activity Recording Committee checked to see that each Teddy had no more than twenty-five activity points.

Although they were few, the duties of the Lunchroom Committee were very important. This was the group that made sure the lunchroom was clean after every lunch.

Significant service shows school spirit

Collecting 150 boxes of canned food for the Salvation Army and giving Christmas gifts to seventy children at the Washington Children's Home were two activities of this year's Social Service Committee. Building and Ground Improvement Committees together sponsored "The Big Sweep," which emphasized cleanliness. Colorful publicity, clever slogans, and a locker clean-out highlighted the drive.

Thirty-five students each worked one period a day in the Main and Counseling Offices. Their responsibilities, filing and acting as receptionists at the desk, required efficiency and accuracy. Accuracy was also important in the Attendance Office, where the girls recorded the attendance of over 2600 students.

The library workers shelved, checked out, and checked in over 12,000 books. This year the All-City Library Association honored Roosevelt's head librarian, Miss Dorothy Watson, as the adviser.

Activities accentuate past traditions

Celebrating Theodore Roosevelt's birthday, October 27, Traditions Committee sponsored Color Week, October 24-28. Miss Aristelle Macdonald's roll, "The Unspeechables of 209," won the over-all color award. In the hall of fame show-case, the Hall of Fame group spotlighted ASR committee chairmen, the marching band, and National Merit Scholarship finalists.

On the bulletin boards, the members of Alumni Committee exhibited information about Roosevelt "grads" including Midge Erickson, Seattle's Seafair Queen, Lee Folkins, Kurt Gegner, and Bob Monroe, University of Washington football players. Orientation Committee explained traditions, activities, and school government to over seventy students who entered Roosevelt during the school year.

Other committees included Sports Boosters, who planned outdoor pep rallies, made pep buttons, and produced more than twenty-five assemblies. They sent a telegram over fifty feet long with every students' name on it to the Teds at the Shoreline football game.

Extra hours affect accomplishment

"Come stag or drag to the P-TA Dance on Saturday night in the Eckstein Gym." P-TA Dance Committee planned theme, publicity, decorations, and entertainment for the dances. P-TA Dances, Great Issues, Ghost Concert, and Santa Claus were some of the events which the Publicity Committee spotlighted on bulletin boards and back signs. The committee also distributed posters for a "safe and sane Halloween" and promoted the second semester ASR committee sign-ups.

While Publicity Committee was concerned with Halloween safety, Traffic Safety Committee sponsored a Traffic Safety Week, November 27-December 2. Officer Darby spoke at an assembly; displays in the Activity Center included radar, a breathalizer, and a driving instruction movie. The committee received a national award for last year's activities. Assembly Committee planned and carried out arrangements for other assemblies.

While many individuals were recognized in the assemblies throughout the year, the award for Ethical Conduct Committee was the satisfaction of encouraging fair play on tests. The committee sent a letter to roll rooms during October which presented for discussion the topics: pupil's responsibilities, teacher's responsibilities, and the penalty for cheating.

Active corps aid school functions

Those who worked behind the scenes aided the Senior Play, Revue, Winter and Spring Concerts, the drama festival, and all assemblies by their conscientious work. The Make-up Corps gave its time to prepare the casts for the shows. Thirty girls on Costume Force made or provided the many costumes worn by participants in the productions. Stage Crew constructed props and arranged lighting and mikes for the stage.

In white blouses and dark skirts, the Girls' Usher Corps seated audiences and distributed programs at Drama and Music Department functions. Members of Boys' Usher Corps enforced the regulations of the Metropolitan league at all football, basketball, and baseball games. Both corps assisted at Commencement. The carefully selected TR's arranged equipment and took tickets at school functions. They helped to sell pep buttons and were ready to assist in any activity when necessary.

"Let knowledge grow from more to more"

—Tennyson

Affiliation Committee, a service group, sponsored the Marseilles Affiliation Program. The purpose of MAP was to promote a pupil exchange program with a school in France. RIRO invited speakers from foreign lands to attend their meetings. Among these visitors were Mr. Ama Oji of Nigeria and Mr. Hermant Sonawala from Bombay, India.

Camera Club, another service group, took pictures for the Strenuous Life and News. The group has its own dark room and owns two speed Graphic cameras and one Contax camera.

The Radio Club operated amateur radio station W76GN, located in the rear of Room 310, and received confirmed contacts from every state. It had a civil defense number and was prepared to operate in an emergency. Responsible for the maintenance and distribution of audio-visual equipment was the A-V Squad. Members were on duty in the A-V room every period of the day to give courteous service.

Competition, service, knowledge heighten Roosevelt clubs

Chess Club joined the Seattle Chess League and won a majority of the games in inter-high competition. The Debate Team, which also competed on a city-wide basis, engaged in extensive research to prepare for debates.

Roosevelt Spades, sponsored by Kiwanis, served the handicapped by making therapeutic aids. Compass Committee distributed handbooks to Sophomores.

Hoping to promote knowledge, the Science-Math Club conducted a series of slide rule lessons. F.T.A. began the year with several of the members attending the North West Regional Conference in Edmonds. The entire club visited classrooms at elementary schools on February 16.

Students clasp hands with those in other lands

Foreign language clubs created an international awareness through their varied activities. Folk-dancing to a Russian band and a four-course dinner were attractions of "Borsh Blast," held by the Russian Club in the Russian Community Center.

Latin Club attempted to recreate the original Roman government by electing two students to each office. In December it held its annual slave sale and donated the proceeds to MAP. The spring Latin Club banquet required those attending to dress in the togas of Roman times.

Another group of future linguists was Le Cercle Francais, which held a pot-luck dinner and a Christmas party; guests presented a play and a choir sang French carols. The group also attended a tea and a Christmas pageant, both sponsored by the Cercle Francais de Seattle. Representatives attended the first all-city French meeting at Ballard in January.

German Club showed its interest in foreign lands by holding a Christmas party and a "Gothic Serfdom Sale" or Bavarian Slave Auction. At its German Dinner-Feast, entertainment included a Bavarian band, dancing, and singing.

To strengthen relations with Spanish-speaking countries, Los Panamericanos invited Senor Jose Lopez to discuss the geography and customs of Peru at their first meeting. In December, this group had its traditional Christmas party to which the Spanish classes donated eight colorful pinatas. Spanish Clubs met at Roosevelt on February 22 for an all-city reunion. Representatives from several high schools recited Latin American and Spanish poetry at this gathering.

Boys' Club activities attract intramural devotees

Ping pong, bowling, softball, basketball, and football attracted boys before and after school in the Boys' Club sponsored intramural program. Intramural was just one of many activities which highlighted this year's Boys' Club.

Trophies were awarded to the first place winners in custom, stock, custom-stock, street rod, and sweepstakes at the hot rod show on October 19. Another show was held on May 9. Roosevelt alumni who had played in the Rose Bowl spoke to more than 200 fathers and sons attending the Father-Son Dessert on November 29. A Boys' Club assembly, held on February 14, was the first in five years. Chesty Walker, assistant football coach at the University of Washington, spoke.

"Missiles in the Navy," a film, and a speech by Petty Officer First Class Cunningham, highlighted the Armed Services Conference on March 7. On April 21, Armed Services Day, the boys learned still more about the obligations of military service through the pamphlets and bookcovers that they received.

"Come to the Big Top," Girls' Club calls

Featuring a circus theme, this year's Girls Club entered the "Big Top" for a merry-go-round of events. Juniors and Seniors oriented Sophomores through the Big-Little Sister program. Everyone met the fall cabinet at the Big-Little Sister party on September 15. Committee chairmen and representatives from each committee went to the Little Conferences in October and in March to learn about leadership. Sponsored by the Girls' Club, Roosevelt's card section made its debut October 28 at the Lincoln football game.

The club honored the fathers at the Father-Daughter banquet on November 15 and the mothers at the Mother-Daughter banquet on April 11. At the Holly Berry tea in December, an exchange student from Sweden, attending the University of Washington, told the mothers and daughters about Swedish Christmas customs.

The Boys' and Girls' Clubs sponsored the "Big Sweep" in January, which emphasized the importance of clean halls and rooms. Both clubs sponsored a P-TA dance.

Girls became acquainted with the spring cabinet and their committees during the seminars, January 24-27.

The election and finally the inaugural on May 5 climaxed a year of unity and friendship.

Individual desire sparks team drive

Five returning lettermen were in "battle rags" for the West Seattle opener: Sig Borgerson, Stew Macdonald, Bob Gidner, John Doces, and Gary Pillar. Roosevelt, setting the pace for a hard-fought season, scored in the final seconds, but fell to West Seattle by one score. Both Edmonds and Ingraham collapsed to the spirited Teds 14-7 and 21-7, respectively.

Roosevelt reaches for championship

In mid-season, Shoreline challenged Roosevelt. With All-City Center Larry Cole setting the pace for the line, the "Big Fellows" fought their sharpest game of the season, but lost 14-7 on a freak play. Displaying the typical Roosevelt school spirit, the Teds rolled over Lincoln 7-6. Injuries slowed the Ruffs against Ballard: 14-6. In better health, the Teds battered Sealth 26-14. In the league playoff for fifth place the Teds moved against Queen Anne for a 7-7 tie.

Ruff's farm system nurtures new talent

Composed mainly of Juniors, a strong second team backed the varsity squad; and earned for themselves, with their 4-2 record, a tie for second place in the North Division of the Metro League.

Coach McGee evaluated the forty-three Sophomores who played the entire season as "the most promising team of any in the past few years." Losing two games and tying one didn't discourage the Sophs, for they recovered and won their next three games—the last was a 34-7 victory over Ingraham. Five of these, Bob Ange, Gary Raden, Lannie Lingle, Bob Alexander, and Brian Nelson, suited-up for the final varsity game—a privilege rarely given to so many.

Leaders and songsters speed spirit for sports

Song and yell leaders, as well as other spirit supporters, promoted "spirit's the thing" as a student body motto to inspire many new pep activities. To intensify the rising roar of the Roosevelt rooters, songleaders distributed Teddy song books and song sheets. Later in the season, the Ballard beaver fell kidnap victim to the Teddy spirit. The yell leaders and coach John Fuller received green and gold vests from the student body to tip off the basketball season.

Along with new activities old traditions remained. Pep buttons, game signs, and the pep band joined in the move to make "spirit the thing." Pre-game rally participants traded stages to promote inter-high spirit.

A trio of Garfield drummers exchanged with the Roosevelt Chorduroys on February 3, and Roosevelt played host to Lincoln and Ingraham songleaders. Before football and basketball games, Seattle pep leaders became better acquainted by holding potluck socials. A desire to experiment and a cry for louder and more spirit typified the '60-'61 true Roosevelt spirit.

Ruff cagers score with drive, talent, spirit

Teddy casaba jockeys, taking advantage of height, superb ball handling, and a driving spirit, classed their way through the northern division to challenge Ballard for the northern crown. Roosevelt met the boys from Snoose Junction for the battle of the greats, January 9, to decide the representatives from the north in the Metro League playoffs. Ballard out-pointed the boys in green and gold 48 to 42.

Teddyville's hopes for a sure berth in the state tourney sprang to life again following the defeat of Ballard by the Sealth cagers. The Ruff melon-men again fell prey to the sharp shooting Beavers 56 to 53. Thus, with a 16-2 record Roosevelt met Sealth in the Metro League playoffs to decide the third entry from the league in the gold cup of the court. The birdmen from the south out-pointed Victor E. Bear's proteges to cop the coveted spot in '61.

Ready reserves reach for varsity

According to Coach Ben Snowden, the third team has the potential for a fine varsity squad. These Sophomore ball handlers proved themselves with a 13-0 season. Their spirit and enthusiasm was shown at the Shoreline game when they came from eleven points behind with only two minutes left to play and won, 56-51. The Sophomore and Junior squads are looking forward to basketball in their own gym next season. The second team was first to play Mountlake Terrace, which will be in varsity competition next year. The Teds' second squad played a 6-6 season.

Noted niners hurl toward crown

Teddy batmen, facing unusually keen competition in the '61 season from the northern division, are relying on recognized pitching supremacy and a strong defense to cop the city baggers' crown. As this copy goes to bed the Ruff potato peelers are striving to bring their hitting up to its expected potential. The Ted ball club has built an impressive 4-0 record in the Metro League following a third place title in the Regional Legion Championships during the summer of 1960. The key paw in the success of the men in the white flannel suits has been Stew MacDonald. Stew's phenomenal hurling downed the world champion Connie Mack Club, 2 out of 3, during the summer season.

Ready rough racketeers win city title

Roosevelt, the undefeated North Division winner, defeated Cleveland, the South Division titlist, to win the 1961 City championship, giving the Teddies a record of 6 wins and no losses for the season.

By trouncing Garfield in the city finals 8-1, the Varsity tennis team captured the 1960 city championship. Brion Bloomberg won the all-city singles championship.

Four '60 lettermen returned for the '61 tennis team: Leaver, Aitkins, Bigelow, and Mangham. The team smashed Shoreline and Edmonds with 9-0 scores. Coach Mel Dranga considered Leaver and Aitkins the best doubles team in the state.

Divot diggers drive diligently for lead

During the last ten years, the Roosevelt diggers pulled three wins and seven second places. To carry on this record, the team proved its quality by winning the Seattle championship in '59 and '60. Tom Storey won the Ernest Worth inspirational award for '58, '59, and '60. He was the first to receive this trophy three years consecutively. This year's top four men, Niznik, Hull, Dubsky, and Fraser, along with the other golfers, won all the matches they played in April, '61. This Roosevelt team scored at the top with West Seattle, Shoreline, and Ingraham. Coach John Rushing predicted that the team would finish in the top four.

Intramural competition aims "On Target"

A new RHO project for 1960 was the organization of the card section at the Ruff-Lynx football game October 28. RHO also handled pompom sales in the front hall for every football game day. Under the direction of Kay Carroll, the club provided girls with the opportunity to participate in volleyball, softball, basketball, apparatus, and archery. Boys and girls participated in after-school roll-tournaments, which awarded trophies for volleyball and basketball winners. The highlight of this program was the Inter-city Volleyball Play Day which was held December 3 at the Lincoln gym.

Mr. Leonard Thrapp and Manager Mike Glover supervised an active and varied intramural sports program. A football tournament began the series of sports. Hardy souls met on crisp autumn mornings to battle. Mrs. Roys' team, captained by Skip Tillman and Steve Yarno, captured this championship.

A popular basketball tournament, with American and National Leagues participating, began winter sports in the gym. Mr. Dale Hanberg's team, American League, lost the championship playoff to Mr. Eugene Olmsted's boys, Mike Glover, Mike McCoy, Paul Kosokoff, Norm Gregory, and Mike Johnson, National League. In a special tournament for Sophomores, Miss Laura Brewitt's roll team won.

Throughout the year eight teams of four students each met on Wednesday afternoons at the U-Bowl to bowl at their own expense.

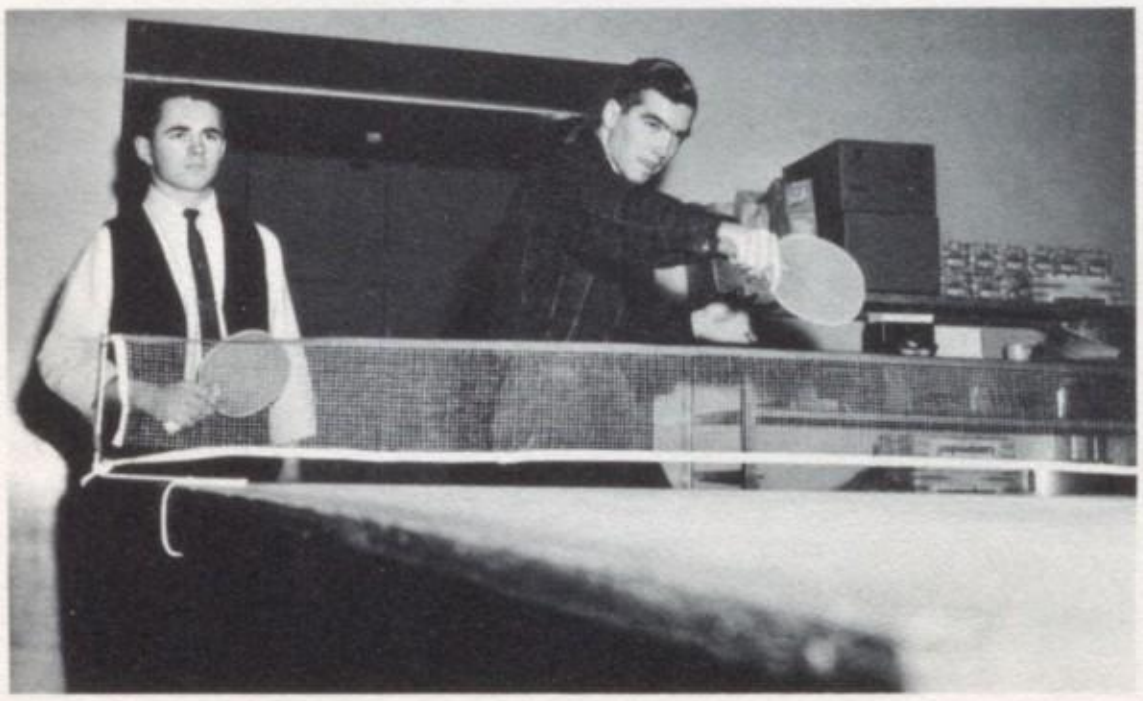
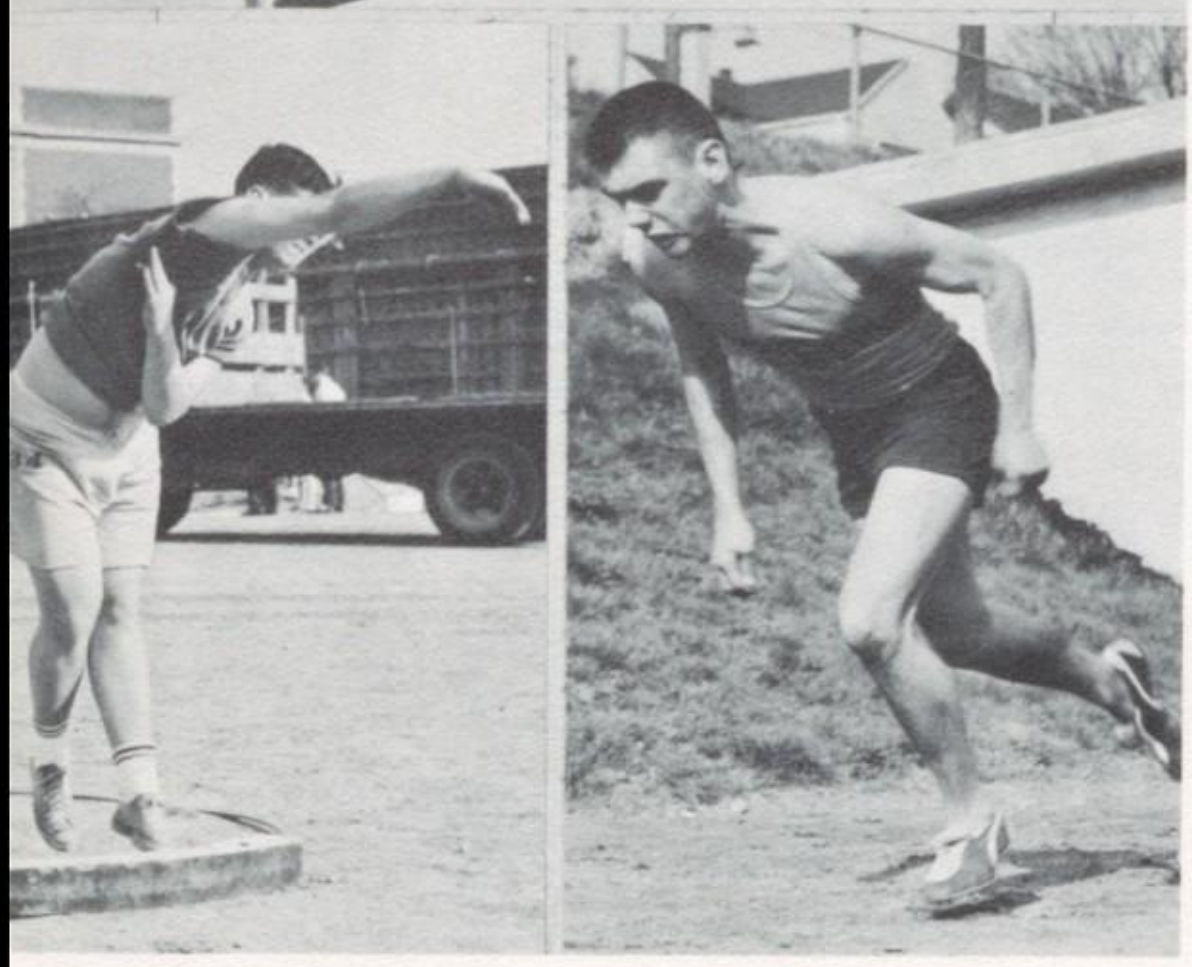
Dennis Quiring gives Barrett Beaupre an example of what intense concentration can do.





Be Prepared! Cliff Harby, Gary Gallagher, and Jim Dunn begin preparation for the Intramural Track Meet a month and a half before the event.

After-school athletics offer variety

Lack of space and time hampered the intramural program during the '60-'61 season. The 100-Mile Club, for instance, from late September until the third week in March, ran at Ravenna, Green Lake, Maple Leaf, and View Ridge, using Roosevelt's own dirt field only occasionally. In the sights of these road-runners was the 200-mile trophy, finally copped by Jim Bordenet.

Leonard Thrapp, the program organizer, began a ping-pong tournament just before Christmas. In the limited space of the lunchroom, thirty bubble-bouncers blasted balls in the first games. After three weeks of single elimination games, only two remained: Dennis Quiring and Barret Beaupre. "Smashing" Quiring finally subdued "Battling" Beaupre for the tournament championship.

Outside of the intramural sports program, Roosevelt aquanauts, captained by Burt Straight and Barbara Bryan, ran away with the All-City High School Swim Meet. The skiers met with similar success. The snowmen won these awards for the Roosevelt showcase: the Boys' Downhill trophy, the Alpine trophy, the All-City Girls' Slalom trophy, which Roosevelt also won last year; and the All-City trophy.

Snow addicts from the Ruff Ski Club and the Ski Team will use any means of transportation to get to the passes. Around car: Rick Zwiebel, Mac Parker, Nigel Jones, Rob Norrie, Jerry Ericson, Scott Wilson, Bob Wilcox, Sig Borgersen, Carl Neu, Doug Betzold, Charlie Mangham, Barb Amick, Margaret Steinmann. In car: Sue Betzold, Linda Stafford, Lee Bracken, Julie Jones, Hal Amick.

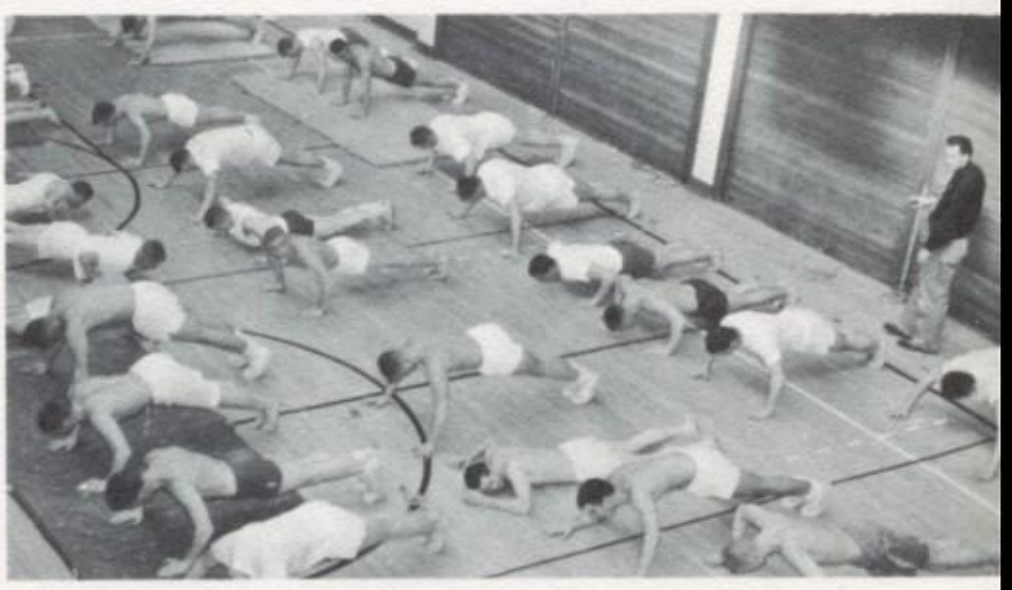
Extensive construction hinders road-runners

The Ted cinder-club, hampered by competition with the construction of the new gym, met the strong Metro League at a decided disadvantage. The road-runners battled their way to the All-City and All-State Track Meets through preliminaries, a new method this year. These triangular division meets led up to the final colossals. Four representatives for each event from both divisions of the city met in the city's "Colosseum." Winners and runners-up tried their skill in the state regatta. Showing possibilities of capturing the league crown was the relay team of Phil Killien, Gary Gibson, Nelson Collard, and Don Robinson. Hopes of Teddyville were also high with Nelson Collard, hurdler; Phil Killien, sprinter; Dan Nelson, 880; Tim Hagman, pole vaulter; and Mark Morrison, broad jumper.

In the '59-'60 city field-day Jim Hoffman and Brandy Neilson, Seniors, Nelson Collard, Mike Pickett, and the relay teams turned out prime performances. A few of these thin-clads also fought their way into the state meet. According to coach John Fuller, "The '61 team will improve on last year's performance."



"Hey Gary, you've got to push to get up!"

Doing all of the head-work for the Ruff trackmen are the coaches, John Fuller and Ben Snowden.

Troupers express joy in "full living"

"You Can't Take it with You," the Pulitzer Prize winning comedy written by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, was produced this year under the direction of Miss Aristelle Macdonald. It was known as a "prop show" which included such unusual props as a xylophone, skull, and printing press. Because of the numerous character roles, it was an excellent production for a high school group. From Grandpa Vanderhof down, they were individualists. The play was based on a one-scene stage setting arranged by Mr. Ivard Strauss. Performances were given December 9-10 with an alternating female cast. It took approximately 125 people to unfold the drama.

Drama V, the Senior Play class, consisted of nineteen girls and one boy, Mike Pickett. Tryouts were held for the other male roles.

Margie Rhodes combined gracefulness with vivacity in her efforts as Essie.

Steve Newman as Grandpa Vanderhof was the stabilizing influence of the family, offering advice for any situation.

Musicians aspire to recognized heights

Sixty-eight students playing varied instruments from bass viol to piccolo constituted the 1960-61 orchestra. Roosevelt's orchestra was honored by an invitation to participate in the opening session of the Northwest Music Educators' Conference March 15 in Spokane. The Conference included delegates from Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Alaska, and Hawaii. Several members of the orchestra were selected to remain as delegates to the convention. The orchestra won recognition for performances in the 1959 Western Washington-North Orchestra Contest and at the Washington State Conference of Music Educators at Wenatchee. For several years the Northwest Washington Contest judges have given Roosevelt superior ratings.

Aside from participating in many of the school's assemblies, the orchestra gave a Christmas Concert, December 21; Band and Orchestra Concert, April 13; and Music Festival, May 14. Most of the members study under private teachers.

Talent galore makes Revue night sparkle.

Rhythm 'n Riot Revue blacks out psychosomatically

"Revue goes Psycho," the thirty-ninth Roosevelt talent production, was an Alfred Hitchcock thriller complete with color scheme in white and black. Audiences on February 8 and 9 watched the performance of over 100 participants, each contributing to the continuity of the entire revue.

The fourth period revue class, divided into six committees, headed by Eleanor Milner, Senior chairman, and Diane Dakan, Junior chairman, produced and directed the performance under the supervision of Mr. Ivard Strauss. The tasks of the committees included writing and directing each scene, organizing tryout schedules and props, advertising the revue, designing programs, and providing necessary costumes. The revue class selected performers during tryouts held December 12-15. Cast rehearsals were held in the auditorium after school for two weeks before the performance.

The program sponsored by Pasternak Tea opened in the courtroom where Peter Gunn, Mike Hammer, and Johnny Staccato were on trial for committing "misdemeanors of the worst kind." Each told his story through one of the three scenes included in the revue: the department store, the haunted house, and the carnival. The appearance of mother in the finale completed the "Psycho" theme. With lights dimmed, the entire cast entered the auditorium and ran onto the stage pointing to mother, and screaming, "She did it!" The curtain fell as the cast sang "Ain't It Great to be Crazy."

Music sweetly echoes singers' achievements

Having the distinction of being the only male chorus in the Seattle High Schools, the Roughrider Choir entertained at the Thanksgiving and Christmas assemblies. The boys also participated in the spring choral festivals.

Another musical group, the Glee Club is a preliminary choir open to all girls who have had no previous experience and wish to join the Concert Choir. On December 21, the Glee Club entertained at the Christmas Concert.

Six members of the Concert Choir represented Roosevelt in the All-Northwest Choir, March 16-19 in Spokane. Local television audiences viewed the Yuletide performances of the Concert Choir and Nonettes, under the direction of Mr. David Humphrey, December 24 and 25 on Channel Four. Nonettes also performed for various organizations including: Delta Kappa Gamma, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and the Lions Club.

Productions create varied curriculum

Lab Writer, a small pocketsize magazine, is the only extra-curricular publication in the school. The four editors, adviser, and staff met weekly to read and discuss the poems, stories, and essays submitted by students. Any student was welcome to submit his work.

For publication in May, the staff selected the top entries. It tried to choose not only the best in creative writing, but also work representative of the many viewpoints found in an American high school.

Line up the copy! Ink the type!

Roosevelt News staff covered a wide program of student activities and added new columns of interest to the paper. The Student Voice and Teddy Tumbrils joined regular Teddy Toddler and High-Spy features. News staff highlighted the Senior Prom on a double spread in the issue of April 21. Brotherhood Week, February 20-24, was another featured event. The year brought not only new columns, but also a change in staff organization. Presiding over the entire staff was the editor-in-chief assisted by the associate editor. Editorial, feature. and copy editors headed other departments. This reorganized staff received a national award for Sharon Ridinger's article on the dangers of tuberculosis. Mike Glover, spring News editor, was one of five finalists in competition for the Times Foundation Journalism Scholarship. Cooperating closely with News staff were members of the Ad staff. Every Tuesday, solicitors visited merchants in communities surrounding Roosevelt. The March 17 issue of the News contained 385 inches of advertisements; this included a spring fashion page. Together the News and Ad staffs produced 24 editions of the Roosevelt News.

Baskervillain pays the price, and under tensions takes up vice.

If you want to know the value of money, try to borrow some from Chuck McCaffree.

Stop the presses! Oil the typewriters!

Annual staffers come through again.

It's hard to top the 1961 Strenuous Life staff. Mrs. Carlotta Brunson, adviser. Seniors—Fourth row: Judy Calapp, editor-in-chief. Third row: Chuck McCaffree, business manager; Pam Leonard, associate editor. Second row: Carolyn Davids, productions editor; Bruce Beard, sports editor; Susan Henning, ASR editor; Lawrence Boyce, Senior class editor; Betty Anderson, layout editor and artist; Bob Baskerville, school life editor. "Will the staff please come to order?" With these words the editor called the meeting of the Strenuous Life staff to order at the first meeting in September and at the beginning of each fifth period during the year. The book for 1961 was underway. Orchids to the "worthy;" demerits to the unfortunates who erred; then a flourish of carbons, layout paper, pencils and glue . . . this was a typical day in room 213, headquarters of the Strenuous Life.

New staffers meant new outlooks, and this year the book is certainly different! Longer news heads replaced former years' brief heads, and color, color, color is everywhere. Division page color blocks and die cuts add to the individuality of the book. The leader, Mrs. Carlotta Brunson, directed the energies of twenty-two "creative artists," nine Seniors and thirteen Juniors, who combined their varied skills to develop continuity in layouts, pictures, and copy for the thirty-eighth volume of the Strenuous Life.

Spruffs exemplify individualism

Forty Roughriders and fifty-seven Golden Spurs constituted the Senior honoraries this year. Qualifications for membership were school service, scholastic achievement, and recommendations from faculty members and former Spurs and Ruffs.

The Spruffs served at banquets, helped with elections, greeted guests, and worked in the offices. Community activities included working at the Seattle Handicap Center, Library for the Blind, Fircrest, and University Hospital.

The groups sponsored a Christmas P-TA Dance and also attended several church services.

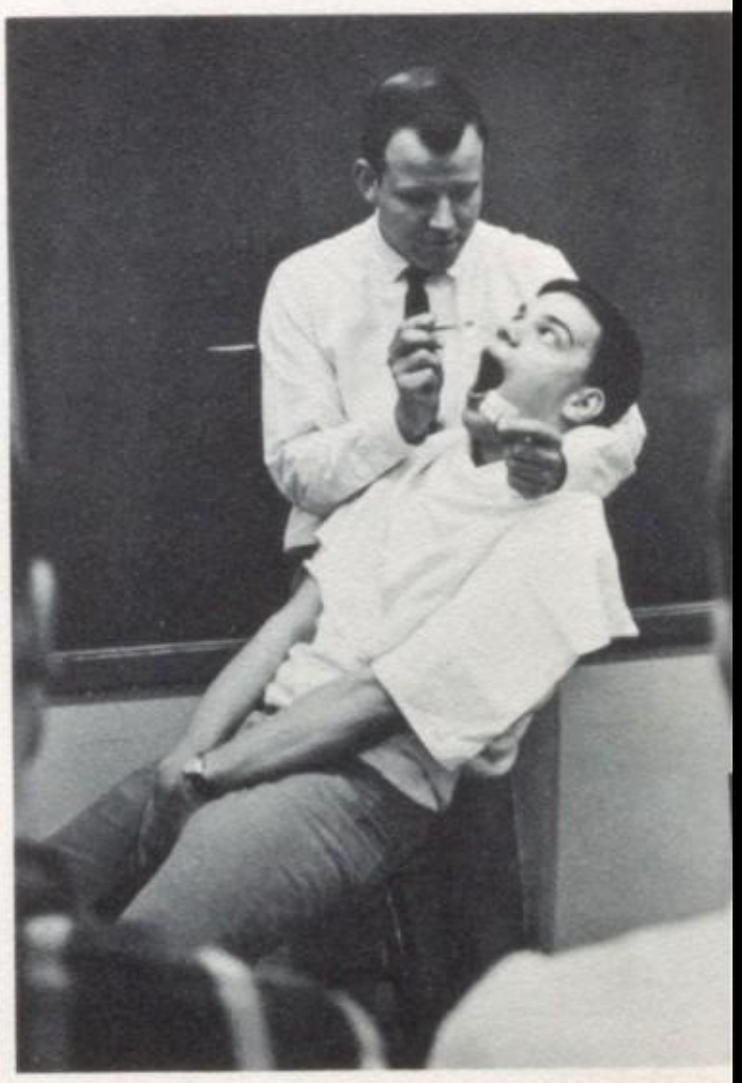
Torch membership symbolizes high scholastic honor

Honor Society acknowleged the students of Roosevelt who were high in scholarship with special programs. The Torch officers and committee chairmen conferred at cabinet meetings to plan these events. Torch assemblies, held during fifth period, entertained members. Before tests, members sold "How to Study" booklets, costing fifty cents, to Roosevelt students. Several cabinet members attended the All-City Torch conferences.

This year, the society reduced the Torch committees to Bulletin Board, Membership, Banquet, and Seminar. Bulletin Board Committee publicized Torch sign-ups and events on the bulletin board near Room 109, and Membership Committee tallied grade points to determine members. Banquet Committee conducted a sign-up, January 25-27, to obtain personnel. The annual banquet occurred in April, and Mr. Glenn Leggett, vice-provost of the University of Washington, spoke on youth, education and the space age. Seminars available to all students presented speakers who offered information on specific vocations.

Mr. Dale Hanberg, adviser of Seminar Committee, practices dentistry on Bob Hanson, illustrating one of several points.



Senior Torch role connotes the individual

To make the Torch banquet an unlimited success, individuals volunteered to assist in the program.

Playing folk music, the Chordoroys, Bob Camp, Frank Hooper, and Chuck Wiggins, entertained Torch members at a special assembly.

Dear Mrs. Smith.

I want to thank you sincerely for all the help you gave me in my Sophomore year. I think you are one of the nicest teachers that I have had since my coming to Roosevelt. You have helped me very much and I am very grateful.

Thanks loads.

Best wishes always

Love

Bull's eye! Seniors sight success

Senior marksmen set their sights "On Target" with the theme "Aim High." They sponsored novel activities including Senior Lunch Pail Day, Senior Shirt-Tail Day, and Senior Wide-Tie Day: Senior boys wore ties three, four, or even five inches wide!

Members of the class of '61 bought 630 class pins. Work Day, December 10, enabled industrious Seniors to earn $150 to help finance the Prom and class gift. By selling two thousand pencils engraved with Roosevelt's basketball schedule, they augmented their funds.

The Junior-Senior Party was held in January, the Senior luncheon in March, and the Junior-Senior Dance in April.

Meeting at Fishermen's Wharf for the Senior Picnic and Cruise was a highlight of final days at Roosevelt. Commencement, June 6, and "Ebb-Tide," the Senior Prom, June 9, completed a year of careful marksmanship.

Miss Audrey Spady, adviser, enthusiastically observes the Junior class activities.

Juniors aim true during second year

"Frostbite" was the theme of the Junior-Senior Party, held on January 12 after school, one of the more colorful activities of the class of 1962. The Chorduroys, the Kady-Jan Trio, and Ginny Holland provided entertainment in the auditorium. Their performances centered around a ski bus on the stage. The committee in charge provided popsicles while the Roosevelt Swing Band played for a sock-hop in the lunchroom.

The Norselander was the scene of a second activity, the Junior-Senior semi-formal dance on April 7. The Modern Sounds' music, and a tropical setting conveyed the theme of "Beyond the Sea."

The Juniors innovated a separate class constitution, and held class cabinet meetings during third period each day. Another distinction for this class was the awarding of 97 Torch pins to the 825 Juniors.

Mrs. Kay Barber enjoys supervising Sophomores from her outpost.

Sophomores begin career at Roosevelt

"Cupid's Target" was the theme of the P-TA dance sponsored by the Sophomore class on February 11. The Majestics provided the music for the dance.

Later, on February 16, a fifth period assembly was held for the Sophomore class. A panel of three discussed "Job Opportunities for the High School Student" and "Working Your Way Through College."

The Class of '63 sold a variety of decals for twenty-five cents a sheet. The purchasers displayed the decals on their car windows.

Some active Sophomores were Al Murch, a member of the varsity basketball team, and Jeff Ingle, an actor in the Senior Play, "You Can't Take It With You." Sophomores participating in the Revue included Sue Rolston, Patty Skahen, and Linda Morrison.

Mrs. Smith——

I hate to write in annuals because everything sounds so trite
I hate to turn in notebooks because I have to stay up all nite
I hate to write farewells because they sound so sobby,
And I hate to think of leaving the "19 Hounds and Bobby!"
(Baskerville)

This semester in class we did have fun
Abstracts, term papers and roundtables - now all done
Preconceived notions we did try to shun,
We played basketball, and our games we all won!
(except 2)
The assignments that you planned gave us quite a start
But the end results were good - much knowledge you did impart
Your smile was contagious, the laugh was sincere
It really was a most enjoyable year!

- Judy Kollack

Here's a droodle dedicated to you!

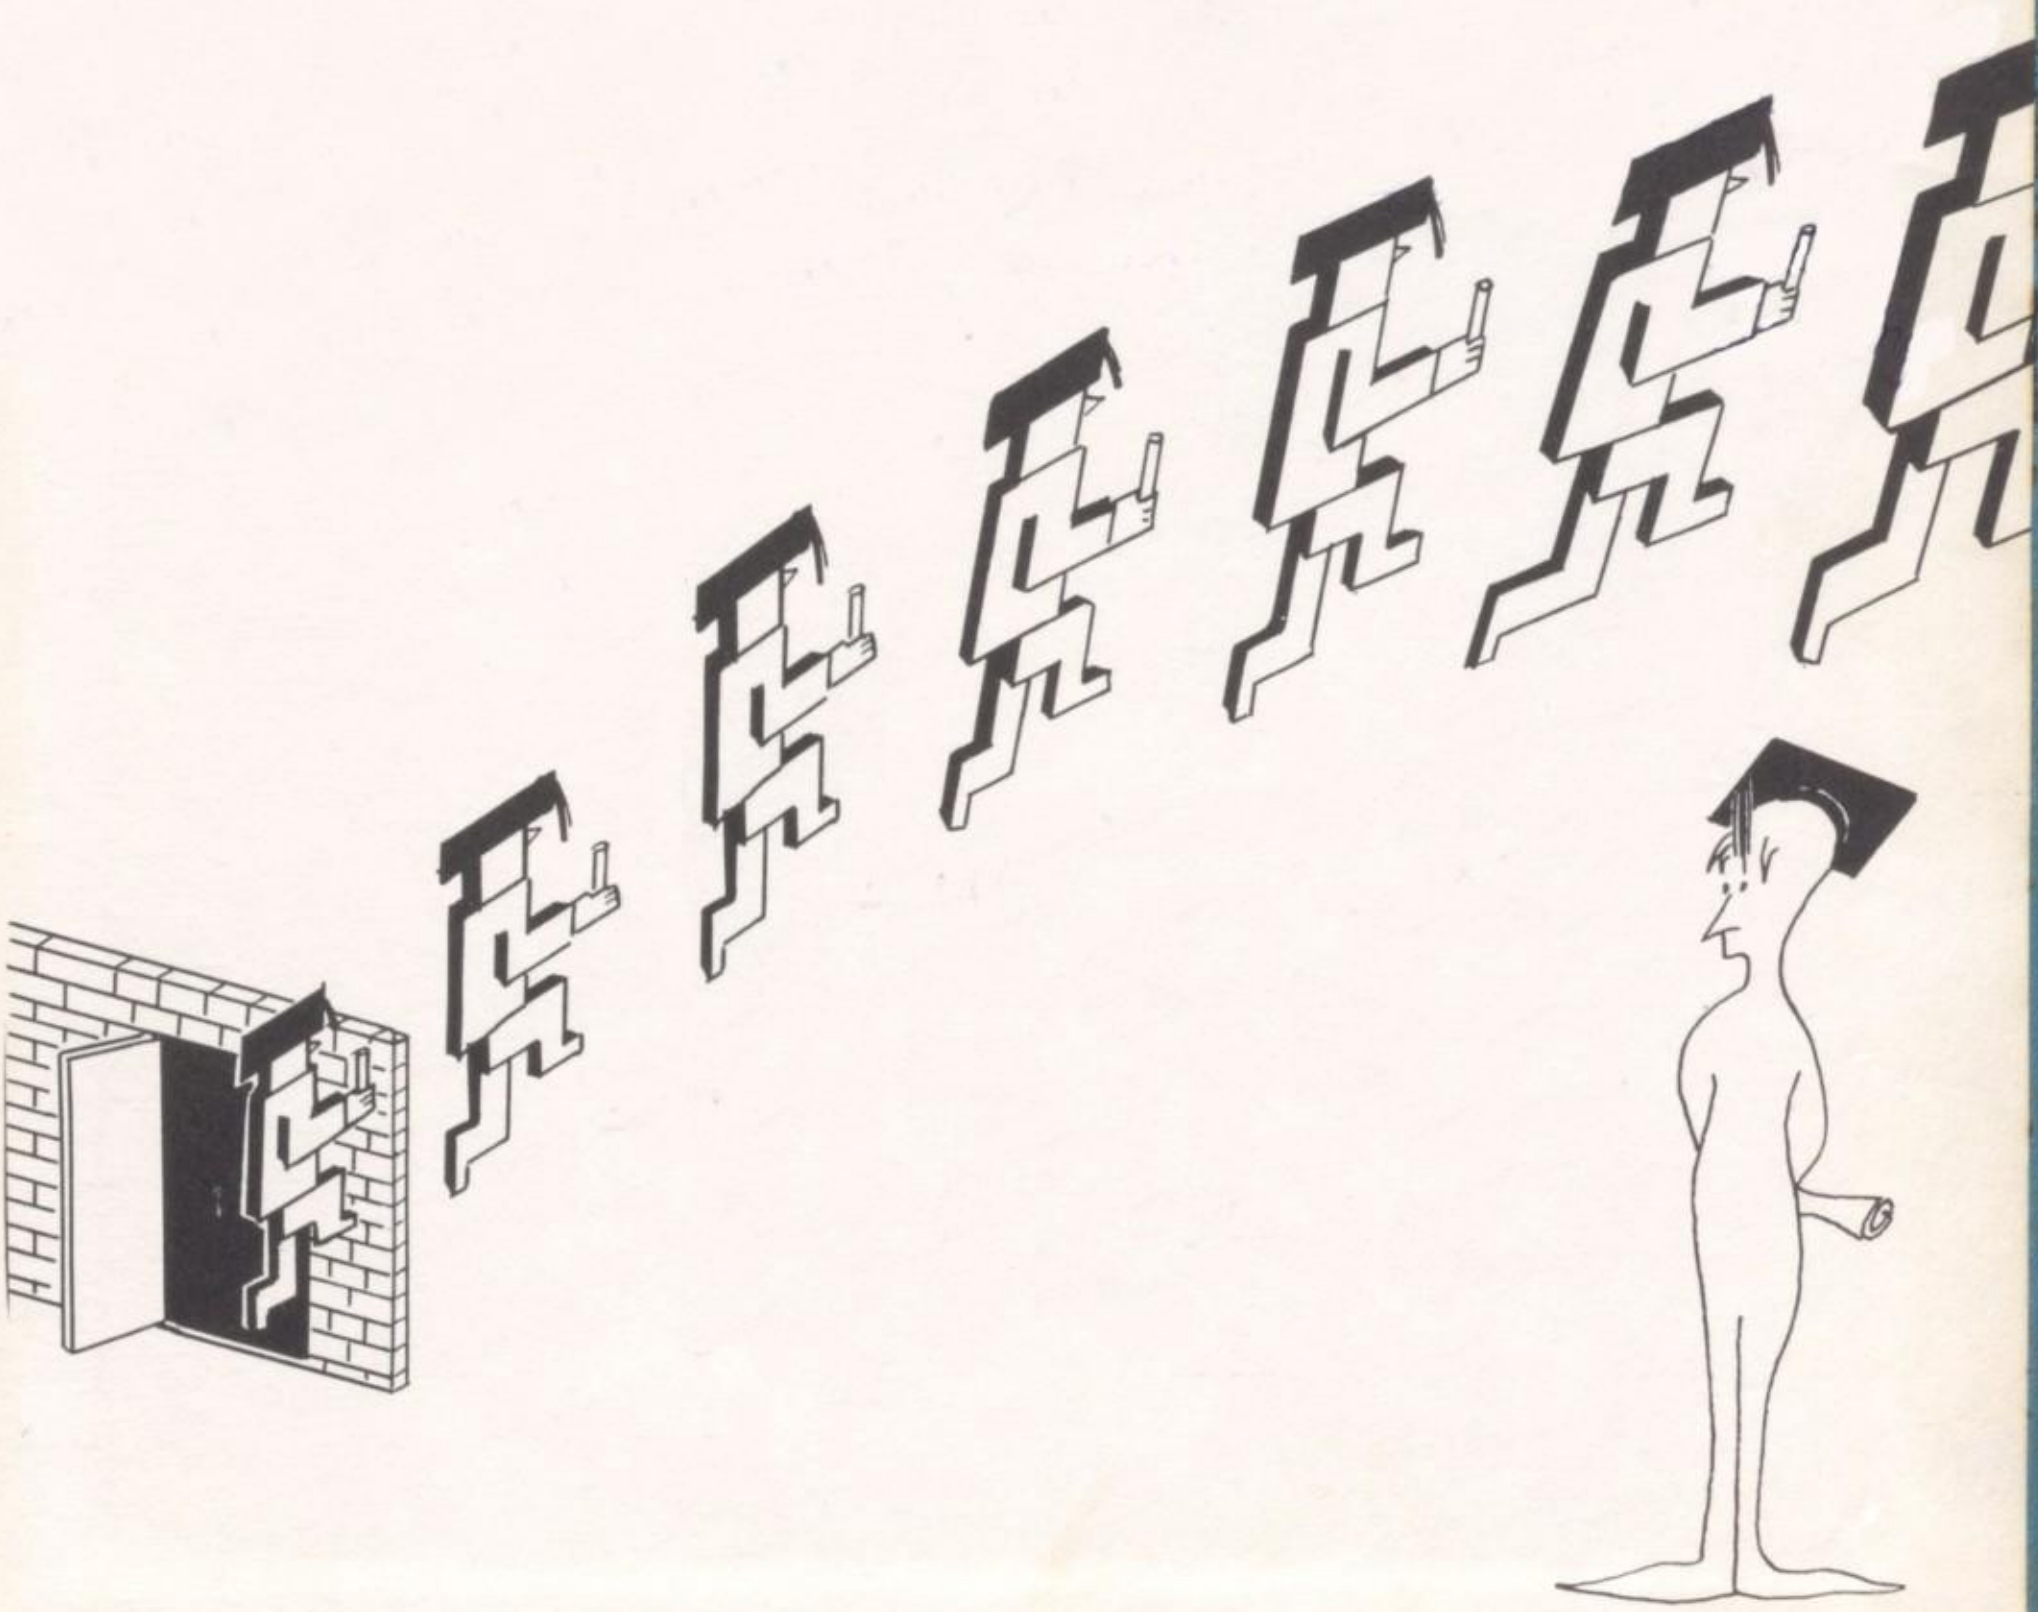
Mrs. Smith -

You have certainly been one of the 5 most interesting teachers I have had in my stormy career; the feeling of being KNOWN and ANALYZED makes one feel rather naked. Your personal interest in me and in all of your students makes your class a lesson in human relations -

Claire Adams

Mrs. Smith,

As usual, at first I was somewhat hostile, but I lost this feeling sooner than I expected. I have learned that I cannot waste time pretending to ideas, feelings, and persons which are pretentious. I certainly was ignorant; I certainly have been exposed; and I certainly hope to attain and gain some knowledge. I respect so much a person who knows and likes all persons as you do. I know that I will remember at Smith and wherever I am, your lessons in objectivity, art, and human relationships. I think, because of you and the class, I can see the relativity of truth and lies, of beauty and ugliness. I see the concrete (or cement) greyness of things.

Thank you,
Robin Bracken


Dear Mrs. Smith;
If the cover were blue & pink it would be just perfect.
I've learned more in your class faster than in any other class I've ever had. you have a fire that you pass on to your students, (so as to enable them to burn the candle at both ends) your lessons in objectivity and human relationships are particularly memorable. Cas, is your patented smile. If all teachers were like you, school would be a joy. Thank you,
Mike Gross
